LIBRARY OF CONGRESS TEACHING with PRIMARY SOURCES

Grant Funding Available for Providers of Teacher Professional Development

The Library of Congress Teaching with Primary Sources (TPS) program provides assistance and grants up to $20,000 through regional coordinators. Grants are available to school districts, universities, cultural institutions, libraries and other educational organizations to incorporate TPS materials and methods into existing professional development or educational programs for pre- or in-service teachers, librarians and media specialists.

TPS helps teachers build students' literacy, critical thinking skills and content knowledge using Library of Congress' collections of 19 million digitized primary sources.

TPS Eastern Region

Coordinated by Waynesburg University
